RAILWAY PRESERVATION SOCIETY OF IRELAND

Whitehead Railway Museum is run by the Railway Preservation Society of Ireland (RPSI), a charity founded in 1964. We are dedicated to preserving and restoring railway heritage in Ireland through our museum and our mainline trains. Our trains, museum and workshop rely on our band of passionate volunteers, supported by a small team of staff.

We always love to welcome new members to our railway family. To find out more about memberships or volunteer opportunities, email us at volunteer@steamtrainsireland.com or call 028 9358 6200.

WHITEHEAD RAILWAY MUSEUM

For a unique visitor experience, make tracks for our fascinating five-gallery museum in the picturesque seaside town of Whitehead.

Located on the Causeway Coastal Route, our museum enables you to step back in time and experience the magic of steam engines. Hop on board the footplate of a 100 year old locomotive and learn how it works, walk through several historic carriages and observe from a viewing gallery as restoration work takes place. The museum is the perfect place to hear entertaining stories of the railways of yesteryear and to learn about how trains transformed society more than 100 years ago.

HOW TO GET HERE?

BY TRAIN:

Trains leave Belfast every 30 minutes for Whitehead. Whitehead is just 35 minutes from Belfast and 20 minutes from Larne.

BY CAR:

Whitehead is just 40 minutes from Belfast along the A2 Causeway Coast Route road. Watch out for signposts to Whitehead and the museum!

MUSEUM ON THE MOVE

We don't just restore trains, we also run trips on them! We are an all island society with bases in Dublin and Whitehead. We run day trips to the seaside, Steam and Jazz nights and seasonal specials at Christmas, Easter and Halloween. Our 'Museum on the Move' allows our visitors to truly experience these mighty machines as they carry you through beautiful scenery.

We also run short steam train rides on our Whitehead site every Saturday during July and August.
